

The problem

Why freelancers wait for money they have already earned

The work is done. The waiting isn't.

Freelancers need their earnings. Clients need to review the work, and may feel little urgency before payment is due.

Payment deadlines can leave a gap after delivery.

Client review can keep funds out of reach.

Overdue payment can require the freelancer to pursue a claim.

The freelancer bears the cost of waiting.

Get paid sooner. Give clients time to review.

Duely makes the wait between delivery and approval easier to afford.

The solution

How Duely bridges the review period

Get paid sooner. Give clients time to review.

Duely bridges the waiting period.

For freelancers

- Submit your work
AI checks it against the requirements both parties agreed to.
- Receive part of your payment
If eligible, paid from a pool funded by liquidity providers.

For clients

- AI-assisted review
Every submission is checked against your exact specifications.
- Money stays in escrow
Nothing leaves your account until you approve the work.

Earlier payment doesn't require earlier client approval.

How it works

Escrow, an advance pool, and settlement on the XRP Ledger

An early advance. A final payout.

1	Agree before work begins	Requirements, deadline, terms, dispute process.
2	Fund escrow and the pool	Client funds escrow. LPs fund the advance pool.	XRPL
3	Submit and evaluate	AI checks work against the agreed requirements.
4	Receive an advance	Partial payment from the pool. Escrow untouched.	XRPL
5	Approve or dispute	Approval settles. A dispute pauses for review.
6	Settle and allocate outcomes	Escrow repays the pool, then pays the freelancer.	XRPL

LPs earn a share of financing fees for bearing advance risk. Returns are not guaranteed.
